New Headquarters Building - Huntingdon, Cambridgeshire

Rapleys LLP, a national firm of Chartered Surveyors, commissioned brp to provide a new head office to replace their outgrown and leased premises in Huntingdon.

Requirements for a combination of mixed open plan and cellular office space for specialist teams of varying numbers, combined with a staff hierarchy gave rise to a very distinctive and ordered interior space.

Future flexibility and expansion potential on this tight site was key in driving the design and external appearance of the building, with the tower containing main stair and lift access to a future third floor. The main roof has similarly been designed as a structural slab with the steel frame being continued within the parapet construction to act as starters for the steel frame for the next phase and with the main cladding panels forming the parapet being trimmed out at the cill height for the future windows
